

Theme

This summer school aims to study and research inequality in the city in its various forms and manifestations: architectural, political, economic, social, and cultural. Topics that will be discussed include the social aspects of planning and design in cities, status and informal status in cities, ways of measuring inequality in cities, ethnic and cultural aspects of inequality in cities, and so on. Naturally, philosophical questions such as the nature of inequality in general and architectural questions such as defining the city in particular will be raised for discussion.

Participants' obligations

- Students should prepare 20 minute long presentations on topics of their research and allow a further 10 minutes for discussions about inequality in the city, about the city itself (not only inequality) or about inequality (not only in the city). The titles of the presentations with short abstracts need to be sent to Andrea Mesanovic (amesanovic@uniri.hr) by the 5th of August.
- Students will also take part in a two hour long supervised research project in Dubrovnik. Findings of the research will later be analyzed in the classroom.
- ECTS points are available for MA and PhD students. The requirements for ECTS credits are (i) participation in at least 80% of all lectures, (ii) presentation of a previously prepared original paper on the topic of the course or discussion papers on the papers provided by lecturers. The organizers will prepare the official IUC certificate, which will include a detailed overview of the students' obligations (sufficient for 3 ECTS). Whether ECTS will be recognized as parts of their academic programs or as additional achievements in diploma supplements depends solely on the institutions that the students come from.

Accommodation

Students themselves organize their travel and accommodation in Dubrovnik. The IUC administration has suggested the services of the Gulliver travel agency, which can be contacted via the e-mail address danijela.strman@gulliver.hr . You can also acquire additional information about the accommodation on this IUC link: <http://www.iuc.hr/accomodation.php>
